Ian is an associate in the Corporate Group of our Calgary office. Ian’s practice focuses primarily on the power industry, with a particular focus on renewable energy, and the upstream and midstream oil and gas industry, including the liquefied natural gas (LNG) sector.

He has experience assisting clients on a broad range of matters and transactions, including asset acquisitions and dispositions, private mergers and acquisitions, project development, major capital construction and supply agreements, long-term commercial transactions, and general corporate and commercial matters. Ian’s related experience includes drafting, negotiating and analyzing corporate and transactional agreements; managing project execution from the pre-Final Investment Decision (FID) stage to the commercial operations date (COD); providing advice on deal strategy; and handling corporate secretarial matters.

Immediately prior to joining Osler, Ian was the lead in-house counsel for the renewable projects of a global independent power producer. Ian also practiced law in the Energy group of a large Canadian national firm out of their Calgary office for over 6 years, where he also completed secondments with two oil and gas supermajors.
