Jonathan is an associate in the Corporate Group of Osler’s Toronto office, where his practice focuses on capital markets, M&A and corporate finance matters.

He advises banks, financial institutions, investment managers and corporate issuers on complex financing and investment product transactions, with particular experience in covered bond offerings, global medium term note (GMTN) programs and other structured funding initiatives for financial institutions.

Jonathan also acts on corporate debt issuances, private placements and cross-border securities offerings across a range of industries, including energy, real estate, logistics and telecommunications. His securities and capital markets practice includes advising on securities matters involving digital assets and investment products.

In addition, Jonathan advises on private and public M&A transactions, having represented clients in the financial services, healthcare, energy, nuclear, and building services industries.

Before beginning his legal career, Jonathan spent a decade as a licensed pharmacist, giving him practical insight into healthcare and life sciences businesses.

He received his Canadian J.D. from the University of Windsor, his U.S. J.D. from the University of Detroit Mercy, and holds an LL.M. from King’s College London in international financial and commercial law.

Jonathan serves on the Board of Directors of the University of Windsor Alumni Association and sits on its Finance Committee.
