Matthew is Chair of Osler’s Digital Assets and Blockchain practice and is a partner in the Corporate Group. Matthew’s practice focuses on securities and financial regulatory matters and the design of sophisticated corporate structures for clients in the digital asset industry.

He regularly advises on stablecoin structures, tokenized securities, cryptoasset trading, custody arrangements, and the development of regulatory-compliant models for emerging technologies. Much of his work involves guiding clients through complex interactions with Canadian regulators and designing bespoke regulatory structures involving registration, exemptive relief applications, disclosure requirements, and digital asset operational flows. He is also ranked in Chambers Fintech (Canada) 2024.

Matthew’s clients include cryptoasset trading platforms, stablecoin issuers, digital asset custodians, real world asset-backed token issuers, non-fungible token (NFT) issuers, cryptocurrency ATM providers, cryptocurrency miners, cryptocurrency investors, and legal entities connected to decentralized finance protocols.

Matthew was one of the first Canadian lawyers to act for cryptocurrency companies in Canada and is regularly called to give his opinion to the media on issues relating to cryptocurrency and Canadian law, and has been quoted in Fortune Magazine, Reuters, The Globe and Mail, Bloomberg, The Logic, The Toronto Star, Yahoo News, the Winnipeg Free Press and has also been interviewed on CBC radio and CBC television. Matthew is also an author on Coindesk.com, the world’s largest cryptocurrency and blockchain news site.

Matthew sits on a variety of advisory boards of his clients and is currently an advisor to the Alberta Securities Commission’s New Economy Advisory Committee.
